

Human Rights and Global Citizenship

This course is the second course of three in the series Human Rights and Global Citizenship course for the Global Citizen Scholars program. The course builds on UHON 1418: Human Rights and Global Citizenship I and allows students to see an international perspective on human rights issues as they continue to develop the mindset and skills of a Global Citizen. It also allows them to use skills gained in CHNG 1008 Place as Text: From Exploration to Impact to learn about the study abroad site(s). The course will be a 4-week course with a 19-day study abroad component.

Students will have a whole semester plus the 6 instructional days before departure to serve as a foundation for the trip. The first course, UHON 1418 introduces human rights and global citizenship for students in the Honors Global Citizen Scholars program. The course provides an overview of the historical development of human rights and basic ethical theory, and introduce the concepts of global awareness, global responsibility, and global participation. Course topics for spring 2022 include the abolition of slavery as a case study for human rights and models of global citizenship, the legacies of slavery in the United Kingdom, modern day slavery in the UK, and migration and human rights in England and Ireland.
